

Dear Friends,

This is a busy month for us as we prepare to leave Ireland for a whole year. Not only does this necessitate all the usual issues of moving (and storage), but it also involves separating from people and projects that have become important to us. Please pray especially for our Irish partners Matt and Jules Tuttlebee. It is a big challenge to care for the needs of a church, especially a small one. Our absence also means that many involved in the Nenagh Baptist Church will have new opportunities to serve. Pray that this will be an encouragement as individuals discover their own strengths and gifts as they contribute to the life of the fellowship.

Sometimes life gets so busy that we fail to see the ways God has been enabling; but saying good-bye to friends and groups all around this community has made us realize how He has been helping us connect to others. What seemed a daunting task; that of becoming involved in the lives of people in a small town, has happened.

God has also been at work in other ways and places in Ireland. This is a real encouragement to those interested in seeing the church of Christ expand. One area of growth that we have experienced is in the number of ABWE personnel helping with different Irish fellowships. Sue Rowland is the newest addition, having arrived just this month from Kentucky. During her first year in Dublin she will be working with the Jamestown Road Baptist church, where we also spent our first twelve months. She along with the Laughlin's (helping with a group in south Dublin), and Stephanie Kozick (in the city center) are all working to encourage Irish church leadership and believers. Please continue to pray for these individuals and the groups they are working with. They all need wisdom in working with people.

For any of you interested in meeting with us while we are in the U.S., you are welcome to contact us using the email address below. We are looking forward to expressing our personal thanks to many of you over this next year.
